CHANGED DAILY FOR C. H. GILMAN—OCTOBER 21, 1885.

TO-DAY

Boys' All-wool Suits (ages, 4 to 11), $2 45.
Ladies' Black Glazed Hand-satchels, nickel-plated, with outside pockets, 15 cents each.

Many people make great mistakes in purchasing UNDERWEAR. They are apt to take anything that is shown them without considering whether it fits or not. One should be as particular in regard to a neat-fitting suit of Underwear as though they were buying a coat or pants; and here is the advantage of purchasing from large Houses that carry all kinds, styles and qualities. Our "Furnishing Goods" Department cannot be surpassed by any House on the coast. To give an idea of the amount of goods it requires to complete our line, we will mention the Scarlet Shirts and Drawers. First, we have the cheap grades for 50 cents; second, the cheap all-wool grade, 75 cents; next the better grade, $1; still better, $1 25; heavy, $1 50; very heavy, $1 90; extra-weight (double fronts and back), $2 50. Here we have seven grades, in all sizes from 34 to 44. Nearly the same we have in White, Blue and Tan Colors. Special mention must be made of our Camel's Hair Underwear, in Plain and Fancy Stripes. These goods are of a fine, soft texture, free from burrs and all foreign matter which is found in Wool Underwear. White and Colored Merino Shirts and Drawers are found at all prices, sometimes as low as 25 cents; the different qualities usually run from 50 cents to $1 50.

Our Fancy and Plain OVERSHIRTS come in such tempting designs that they sell for themselves, and one must be hard to please that cannot get suited with such a variety to choose from.
Gents' Socks, of the finest Lamb's Wool, Merino, Lisle Thread, Cotton and Cashmere, in plain and fancy colors, ranging from 5 cents to 60 cents per pair.
Buck Gloves, heavy and light, and excellent quality, for $1 per pair; Gents' Driving Gloves, 50 cents to $1 75.
The Perfect-fitting White Shirt, reinforced front, linen bosom and cuffs, $1, $1 25 and $1 50.
Plain and Fancy Handkerchiefs, in Linen and Cotton.
Neckwear of all kinds, and a thousand other things which one must see to appreciate.

UNWRITTEN HISTORY.

HOW GRANT PREVENTED A SECOND WAR.

What He Accomplished in China and Japan—How He Checkmated President Johnson.

(SPECIAL BY TELEGRAPH TO THE RECORD-UNION.)

New York, October 20th.—Hon. Chauncey M. Depew has furnished to the press the following open letter to Colonel F. D. Grant:
New York, October 12, 1885.
My Dear General: In answer to your request for the particulars of a conversation I had with your father, and to which I alluded in a speech before the Chamber of Commerce, the following is my best recollection: About four years ago I sat beside General Grant at dinner. There were many guests, slowly served, and the entertainment lasted several hours. We discussed many matters suggested by his travels abroad the world.

Among other things he said to me that when in China, Prince Kung, who was Regent and the real ruler of the minority of the Emperor, old him of their controversy with Japan. War was about to be declared, and he said that it would be a long and bloody one, and asked General Grant if he would act as arbitrator. He suggested, however, that the Japanese Government were actively stirring up strife on both sides, hoping to make him the cause of the Japanese Government to act as arbitrator, and in again declining, he stated the substance of the compromise he had made for China. The two nations adopted substantially the terms proposed by Grant, and a disastrous conflict was averted.

THE GENERAL AND PRESIDENT JOHNSON.
The conversation drifted into a consideration of his relations with President Andrew Johnson. The narrative of the situation of the parties and persons as the events occurred, invaluable as a portrait and estimate of the times, I said in my address that General Grant performed services to his country, which were unwritten, quite as important as any that were recorded, and I think this narrative will bear me out. This is the substance of the story: Johnson began the day after the assassination of Mr. Lincoln, to loudly proclaim, at all times and places, with constant reiteration, the shibboleth, "Treason is odious, and must be punished, and the chief rebels shall be hung." To give effect to this sentiment, as soon as he was inaugurated, he insisted upon the United States Court-Virginians against all leading members of the Confederacy. He also wanted the officers in the rebel army, who had left to regular army to join the rebellion, to be summarily dealt with by Court-martial. These movements of the President produced the greatest consternation throughout the South. The Confederate leaders appealed to Grant to protect them on the parole he had given. He saw Johnson on the subject, and only to be informed that the President was by the Constitution Commander-in-Chief of the army, and that everything on the part of the commanding General on the field was done subject to his approval or rejection, and he rejected the terms proposed by Grant, and the rebels had surrendered. Grant tried to get Johnson to see that the rebels, on these conditions, disbanded their organization, submitted universally to the situation, and were cutting out in good faith their part of the agreement, and that every consideration of both honor and policy would be equally good faith on the part of the Government. Any other course would have been to make the rebels, on these conditions, a country admirably adapted for it, by desperate and hopeless men. Johnson obstinately adhered to his view, and assumed the duty of Commander-in-Chief of the army, and he said that if there were to be any Court-martial case must be called to the General Grant, first that he would by every means in his power, protect his parole, and appeal to Congress and the country.

JOHNSON'S CHANGE OF FRONT.
In the halt called by this attitude of General Grant, a very remarkable change occurred in the policy of President Johnson. General Grant discovered that the most frequent and favored visitors to the White House were men whom the President had proscribed in the General's opinion Johnson's loyalty was subordinate, if not entirely dependent, upon his entire confidence in Johnson. Johnson was a poor white, had been a journeyman tailor, and notwithstanding the distinction of his position, had not held a high office, and was not a member of the aristocracy. He was a poor white, had been a journeyman tailor, and notwithstanding the distinction of his position, had not held a high office, and was not a member of the aristocracy. STRATEGY OF THE PRESIDENT.

Shortly afterward the President sent for General Grant, and said to him that the relations of our Government with Mexico were very delicate, and he wished him to go to the City of Mexico at once on a very important mission. The General knew that this was a very delicate mission, and he put it in the power of the President to call his successor to Washington some other person whom he would rely. He replied that if the appointment was a diplomatic one he declined it. If it was a military one he would accept it, because the General of the Army could not be ordered to a foreign country with which we were at peace. The interview was a stormy one, but the subject was never brought up again. It is at this date needless to speculate upon what might have happened had General Grant actually assisted, or possibly obeyed, the President in his mission to Mexico. The obstinacy of Andrew Johnson, and only men of equal firmness and determination could have resisted a more calamitous and unfortunate strike at the most critical period of the reconstruction of the republic. Yours, very truly, CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

TO COLONEL FREDERICK D. GRANT.

New York, October 15, 1885.

Dear Mr. Depew: I am in receipt of your letter, and thank you for your request for my request. I have read your letter, and it is substantially correct, and I have been to verify the facts from documents, letters and personal recollections. Yours, very truly, F. D. GRANT.

THE NEW YORK "HERALD" PROPOSES A SECOND CIVIL WAR.

New York, October 21st.—A. M.—The Herald says of the Grant-Johnson matter: We have no space to comment to-day on this correspondence, which is, of course, only one of the many episodes in our national history. Among the disclosures that are to come we wait with special interest the disclosure of the treasonable propositions of Johnson, which Grant related to Depew, and which Depew related to Grant. The disclosures and documents to attest, were omitted from the history of impeachment presented against Johnson by the House in 1868.

A MARKED CONTRAST TO JOHNSON.

New York, October 21st.—A. M.—A World editorial says: This is a story that has been repeatedly hinted at, and now that it is out everything has been made plain. It is a tribute to the loyalty and steadfastness of Grant, and it adds another shade to the darkened memory of Andrew Johnson.

A SECOND CIVIL WAR.

The Tribune says: Depew's letter will go far to sustain his assertion that Grant prevented a second civil war. There would indeed have been a second civil war if the loyal Senators and Representatives of the North had been declared a "rump Congress."
